"JELFS,"

A Big 5-Act London Feature, featuring Henry Ainley, Gerald Ames, Charles Rock, and Mary Dibley.

The Prologue, "The Parable of the Talents," an allegorical bit that precedes the real story, is a well done and very expensive piece of producing. Hundreds of people appear in the big Biblical scenes which give a comparison of ancient and modern banking, which is highly interesting and spectacular, whilst the play, founded on an episode in the history of the great London Banking House of Jelfs, is a picture that will delight everyone.

Also, Deserted at the Auto (a comedy to send you home laughing).
