Opening of the New Council-chambers at Moss Vale.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

MOSS VALE, SATURDAY.

The new commodious well-finished Council-chamber, just completed at a cost of about £1500, was opened on Saturday night by an invitation banquet. The building is of brick, and of two stories, in free classic style. It is neatly ornamented and splendidly finished, furnished and lighted throughout with the electric light. It is an ornament to the town, and a credit to the council and Mr. Harrie C. Hind, architect, of Granville, and Mr. William Jones, contractor, of Moss Vale. The site is a beautiful one, having 100ft. frontage to Throsby-street with a depth of 186ft. The building consists of council meeting-room 25ft. by 14ft., free public library and council clerk's rooms 14ft. by 16ft., a very comfortable mayor's room, and caretaker's quarters. The Mayor (Alderman N. H. Throsby), who has been elected for the third time, occupied the chair, and Aldermen H. Coleman and A. B. Young the vice-chairs. About 100 people were present, including Lord Jersey and Mr. Goschen, private secretary, Mr. W. M'Court, M.L.A., Aldermen H. Wiles, H. Taylor, D. M'Gregor, John Cullen, H. Richardson, E. Goodridge, Mayor John G. Morris, of Bowral; Mayor Thomas Viles, of Mittagong; J. L. Campbell, Messrs. Billyard-Leake, F. R. Wilshire, P.M., T. Leery, J.P., and John Hayter.

A number of toasts were honoured.

A man of free intellect thinks of nothing so little as death, and his wisdom is not a meditation of death, but is a meditation of life.

THE BABY ON A BATTLEFIELD.

On the night after the battle of Waterloo, in the blood-stained mire of a ploughed field, lay an English officer, dead where he fell. At his side lay the body of his wife, who had followed him from England, and perhaps arrived in time to receive his last sigh. On his breast was their baby, sound asleep, and smiling amid that dreadful scene as though angels were inspiring its dreams.

Ah, God! what a thing is childhood, touching Heaven in its innocence and earth in its agony. While we have the children how large the places they fill! When we lose them how great the vacancies they leave!

Read the story of an escape, as told by a parent. My daughter Kate, now eleven years old, had always been delicate. She was pale and thin, and, as it seemed, as though a breath of cold air would destroy her. She was now better, now worse, but never well. In the summer of 1885 she complained of a sense of weight in the chest and side. Her abdomen was distended as though she had overeaten, when in fact she ate scarcely more than a bird. She spoke of a bad taste in the mouth, and would always be holding her sides, or placing her hand against her temples, as if to relieve the pressure there.

She also had pains between the shoulders, and her breath was very offensive. She was always tired and languid, and, though naturally a bright, intelligent child, she would lie for hours in a listless condition. She grew weaker and weaker until she could scarcely stand. We thought her to be in a decline. Then came a sign even more alarming—a short, dry, deep-sounding cough. My wife and I feared it was consumption; in our anxiety we consulted the doctors, who said, "Yes, your daughter has consumption." What a sad prospect for us!

About Christmas, 1885, I removed my family from Huntingdon to Manchester. Poor Kate was too weak to take the journey with us; she remained with her grandmother at Thorp Farm, Norfolk. Still the dear child sank from week to week. What was our surprise, some time afterwards, to receive a letter from grandmother reading like this:—"Kate is very much better. She is eating well and sleeping well; and the roses are coming into her thin cheeks." What could have happened? In another month we had the happiness of welcoming our daughter in our new home in Manchester. How great was our joy when we saw the wonderful change which had taken place in her. She is now a fine, healthy child, and never ails anything more than any girl may.

Now, what wrought this change? What gave us back our daughter, seemingly almost from the brink of the grave? I will answer frankly, for there is nothing to conceal:—Seeing her deplorable state, and that none of the medicine she had taken proved appropriate to her strange malady, her grandmother one day said to herself, "I think I will give Kate a dose out of my bottle of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup." Her grandmother had received great benefit from this medicine herself for a complicated disease. It was given to Kate, and the good effect was immediate. She at once rested more tranquilly and had something of an appetite, and a little later her grandmother was justified in writing to us as I have already stated!—(Signed), Frederick Butcher, 6, Birch-road, Crumpsall, near Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Butcher are people of the highest respectability and well educated. For some years Mr. Butcher was an assistant at the great shop of the Messrs, Lewis, Market-street, Manchester, and an impartial acquaintance writes that Miss Kate Butcher is one of the brightest young girls to be met with anywhere—quick, precocious, and full of vivacity and wit. Speaking of the daughter's recovery her mother says: "I do not care what anyone may say, there is no medicine so good as Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup."

The proprietors of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup desire to make no false impressions. The young girl did not have consumption. She suffered from indigestion and dyspepsia, and from poverty of the blood, like myriads of her sex. The hollow cough, which sounded so consumptive, was one of the symptoms, not the disease. She needed life and strength from her food but how could she get it with her stomach torpid and dead? Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup corrected the ailment at its root, and recovery quickly followed. We repeat once more the fact that is taught by this interesting case:—When in doubt treat any and all complaints as symptoms of indigestion and dyspepsia, and in nine instances out of ten you will see just such a wonder as narrated above. We wish long life and happy days to this young lady and her good parents and friends.
